

Acute, long term care concerns addressed in proposal to LRHA

Mayor Ed Buck, on behalf of the nine-member Physicians Recruitment Committee, presented a proposal outlining various items of concern to the Lakeland Regional Health Authority last week.

Acute and long term care issues were included in the brief.

"What is to be done when the facility gets to its full capacity of ten beds?" Buck asked. One option is to transfer patients to another facility, but Buck said these facilities "are experiencing the same issues as far as occupancy rates." He asked who would pay ambulance charges for the transfers, noting that "normally, ambulance charges to another facility are the responsibility of the patient — but is this their responsibility?" He also wondered if Elk Point's facility statistics would suffer because patients had to be directed elsewhere.

If the patients were kept in the facility, Buck asked "who is going to pick up the cost of supplies and staffing above the ten beds?" The facility is currently staffed to accommodate no more than ten patients, and "if we are to keep them, do we discharge other patients to accommodate these factors?" He also wondered if ambulance services should be directed not to stop here if the facility is full, and how all of these situations would be communicated.

Current staffing levels of one registered nurse and one licensed practical nurse on a 24-hour-a-day basis do not facilitate emergency situations, Buck said. These two staff members must cover pediatrics, palliative care, acute care and the emergency department. The nursing supervisor is available during regular day shifts four days of the week, but Buck said she is out of the building approximately one quarter of that time to deal with other issues and facets of her job, and also supervises the 30 long term care beds. This means she is "not available to help except in extreme emergencies." Between 6:00 p.m. and 7:00 a.m., the RN and LPN are the only two people in the facility, since the long term care facility is basically a separate building. During this period, these two individuals must also answer the phone, man the community fire phone, maintain the security of the building, deal with visitors during visiting hours, admit patients and run the outpatient/emergency department. Buck

Use of casual staff in busy times "sounds good in theory" but leaves the full time nurses huge workloads said that when an emergency occurs, the RN is off the acute care ward, leaving the LPN there. These two wards are physically separate with no visual contact.

Buck addressed the use of casual staff for the emergency room and heavy workload, and said "this sounds very good in theory, but has slowly eroded over the past year. Casual staff are now working in more than one facility, and it is harder to find someone not working." Many of the staff are working in community care positions which makes them unavailable for work at the hospital. With the shortage of scheduled nursing hours, many of the staff have found other avenues of income. As technology increases, with call display they now

Volunteer Week proclaimed in Elk Point for April 13 to 19

WHEREAS the days of April 13 to 19, 1997 have been designated as

Volunteer Appreciation Week

AND WHEREAS it is proper to recognize those volunteers who have contributed freely of time and effort through personal concerns of others;

AND WHEREAS those who have volunteered of themselves have led to the ultimate improvement of our community;

It is appropriate to express sincere gratitude on behalf of members of the Municipal Council and citizens of our community, and to honor those whose voluntarism makes them the heart of our community;

We hereby proclaim Volunteer Appreciation Week officially underway in the Town of Elk Point.

Signed
Ed Buck
Mayor of Elk Point.

Berg, Chaplain; Bill Schuhmacher, Historian. Brother Bjornstad was honored for his many years of service to the lodge.

The new Exalted Ruler thanked the installing officers for presiding over the ceremony, and thanked his brother Elks "for railroading me into this job."

HRL Zenko added her thanks to the installing officers, and thanked the Past Honored Royal Lady and Past Exalted Ruler for their guidance in her first term in office. She also thanked the ladies who accepted a second term in office, and welcomed Pat Flett to the executive team. She welcomed new Exalted Ruler Jennissen, and is looking forward to working with him.

District Deputy Algot thanked the drill team for their part in the ceremony and the installing secretaries and assistant installing officers. District Deputy Sosnowski added his thanks, and wished the officers of both lodges a successful year.

Mike Chubey, who is on the Alberta Elks Lodge executive, offered congratulations on behalf of the Provincial association.

HONORED ROYAL LADY Adaline Zenko is presented with her Honored Royal Lady's pin by DD Sharon Algot after her installation.

Volunteerism — a valuable commitment

By Deanna Easthope
FCSS Director

Last week I talked about volunteerism and how it was the heart of our community of Elk Point. I hope you all agreed with me, for if our community didn't have volunteers, I hate to think what our community would be like.

This week I want to talk about the commitment it takes to be a volunteer. Some of you are probably saying... "You're not kidding!" Volunteering, in some cases, is like accepting a part-time or full-time job. Only this time, the pay is not financial. Also, it can be said, the employer or "boss" is not one person, it is many people. Thus, to become a volunteer, really means that the person believes in what they are doing.

Boy oh boy, are these people ever valuable. When a person believes in what they are doing - they are committed - they are loyal - they endure - and they are people who make a difference.

We have many people in our community of Elk Point who are volunteers. Our historical society has people who volunteer to keep our history alive; our skating and riding arenas have many, many people who volunteer their time to support the activities there; our schools have parents who volunteer their times to support the educational activities of their children; our local service clubs have many volunteers who give service in our community; our several sports groups of basketball, softball, volleyball, soccer, gymnastics, handball, badminton, etc., really couldn't function without the many volunteer coaches and other adult support; and the list could go on. Then, I mustn't forget all the "boards" and "committees" who plan special events and the on going functions.

Volunteerism is a commitment and a way of life. Volunteers believe in what they do and they do make a difference.

Because the word commitment is defined as an agreement or pledge to do something which becomes a state of obligation or is emotionally impelled, I believe we should never take our volunteers for granted or assume that they "have to" do what we think needs to be done. In other words, let us not come to expect that what our volunteers are now doing is what "should" always be done. Instead, let us look at volunteerism for what it is... a time of giving by a committed person. and let us be grateful.

I am glad that National Volunteer Appreciation Week is here, for we all can take the time to say thank you. At the same time, let us not forget our volunteers during the rest of the year.

THANK YOU, OUR VALUABLE VOLUNTEERS!

Remembering Vimy Ridge

A wounded soldier writes home

Corporal Roland P. Nash was a soldier with the Second Battalion who fought in the Battle of Vimy Ridge, 80 years ago this past week. He was the uncle of Edith Mitchell, who supplied us with this letter. The note was supplied by Mrs. Mitchell's nephew, who has researched the battle.

Lewisham Military Hospital
London
Aug. 7, 1917

Dear Mother,

I guess it is about time I wrote you another letter, isn't it? Well I am back in England again and not a bit sorry for I have had enough of France to last me for some time. My wound is very nearly healed and I am having a good time here. We can go out anywhere we like in the afternoon from 2 till 8 o'clock so that I am busily engaged taking in the sights of London.

The people here never seem to grow tired of entertaining wounded soldiers. Yesterday I was at a fete given by the employers of the Army Ordinance Department at Woolwich. There were about 200 wounded soldiers and sailors there and they certainly gave us a good time. I ate so much I nearly made myself sick.

While I was in hospital in France I saw Tony Meahen. He was in an Imperial hospital just across the road from the Canadian hospital.

Now that I am free from censorship I can tell you where I have been during the last six months. When I arrived in France, our division, the second, was just coming out for a rest, and when we went back again about the first week in February we found ourselves in front of the famous Vimy Ridge. Our trenches were always knee-deep in water, because the Germans were on higher ground and they used to drain their water into our trenches.

On Monday morning, April 9, we advanced to take the ridge. Our battalion and the 19th took the first three lines of trenches and made an advance of about 800 yds. We were covered by a wonderful barrage of artillery fire so that the few Germans who remained alive when we arrived had no fight left in them. Only a few machine guns in concrete emplacements offered any resistance and we soon overcame them. One of the sergeants of our company attacked one single handed and got the Victoria Cross, but was killed. He was the first man in the second division to win the V.C.

(NOTE: The sergeant here was Ellis Sifton. See Page 232 of 'Vimy' by Pierre Berton. See also Page 118 of 'Canada's Glory' by William Arthur Bishop)

We dug ourselves in just in front of the village of Thelus and the 20th and 21st went on and took the village and the 6th brigade went on and advanced right to the far edge of the ridge. We held our line for a couple of days and then went up and relived the 6th Brigade in the new front line. We were just on the edge of the ridge which was very steep at this point and we could see for miles into the valley beyond.

We were heavily shelled here for a couple of days and then on Friday afternoon we advanced again. We made an advance of about 2000 yds. without meeting any opposition. When we dug in and were relieved the same night. During the next month or so we kept advancing as fast as they could get the artillery up behind us until by the 1st of June we were about five miles in front of the ridge. During June we were out for a rest and in the first week in July we went back to the line in front of the city of Lens which is a few miles to the left of Vimy. It is a pretty hot spot and I am quite satisfied to be out of it when they come to advance there which they will probably do shortly.

Well I guess I will close for this time.

Tax Tips

By Norm Gueutal

If you have a severe impairment which makes it difficult to carry out basic activities of daily living you may qualify for tax breaks against your income. These tax breaks are designed to compensate you or someone whom you are dependant on the extra expenses incurred as result of your disability. In order to claim most of them, however, you must file a T2201 "Disability Tax Credit Certificate" with your return. This form which must be completed in part by a doctor or optometrist, enables Revenue Canada to determine whether you meet the definition of "disabled".

Assuming that you meet the definition outlined above, you are allowed to claim a disability tax credit of $4333. The disability amount is a non-refundable tax credit, which means that any portion which can't be used to reduce your tax payable to zero is not refunded to you. However, you may be able to transfer the unused portion to someone else. This can have significant income tax savings.

If you qualify for the disability amount and your disability is such that you require the services of a full time attendant or full time care in a nursing home, you may deduct these costs as medical expenses. However, if the cost of the full time care exceeds $5000 you cannot claim both a disability amount and medical expenses. You would have to decided which is most beneficial. If you have other eligible medical expenses you would of course be entitled to claim them, the same as any other taxpayer, regardless of whether you qualify for the disability amount.

If you had to pay for attendant care to enable you to earn income, you may be able to claim a deduc-tion for at least part of the cost. The claim is limited to the expenses incurred to a maximum of $5000 or 2/3 of your earned income, whichever is less. This deduction does not affect your ability to claim the disability amount.

In the case of children with disabilities, age and expected development must be taken into account. All two year olds, for example, are severely limited in the ability to perform the basic tasks of daily living, whether they are disabled or not. Some impairments may not qualify as a disability under this program until the child is old enough for their lifestyle to be effected.

If you feel that you or someone you know may qualify under this program you should talk to your tax advisor and your Doctor.

Get fit at Elk Point's new Bear Den gym

Getting fit just got easier for Elk Point residents, who now can exercise no matter what the weather.

The Bear Den Gym opened at the back of the Plaza 75 Mall on February 9, and owner Roger Smith says things are going well so far, with 15 to 20 clients a day coming in to work out on the various machines, which include exercise bikes, stair steppers, a treadmill, weights and "a pretty extensive universal system."

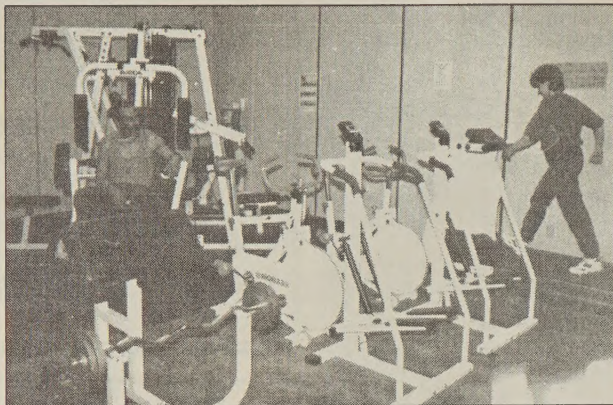

The gym is open from 6 a.m. until 11 p.m., and is busiest in the early mornings and evenings. Smith says the slow times, from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., would be ideal for seniors and stay-at-home parents to come and get some exercise.

Memberships start at $25 for one month, and range to $210 for a year of unlimited use. There are currently 85 members. And you don't have to sign up to see if you like it -- the first visit is free.

The Bear Den is celebrating its grand opening April 20 to 27, which is also National Physiotherapy Week.

WORKOUT TIME at the Bear Den Gym offers members a variety of activities, from walking on the treadmill to exercising on the Universal system, stair steppers and stationery bicycles.

who is calling, and Buck said that "they know they are getting called because it is very busy or someone is sick; so now they can say no without even answering the phone."

Buck questioned the security of both patients and staff. "Many times the staff are left working by themselves, either in the emergency room or acute care ward. Who is going to protect them? The facility is open to the public for visiting hours and the staff have no idea who is coming or going. There is not always someone supervising pediatrics, so there is the possibility of snatching or kidnapping. There is also an issue of confidentiality as staff is not always able to secure charts."

The facility has made a major effort to reduce the number of clinic-type patients in the emergency room, and Buck said "this has been very successful, but instead of being recognized for this, we are compared to the facilities which have not been so conscientious."

A comparison of statistics shows the facility was full or over its 10-bed capacity 26% of the time in December, 23% of the time in January, 32% of the time in February, but was within capacity throughout March. Buck told the LRHA that the facility "compares well with other facilities of the same size. The average length of stay is slightly less than average, at approximately four days per stay." The number of ER visits and their complexity "has been very stable over the past year," with about 300 visits per month, of which approximately 30% were complex.

Buck said there is an anticipation that the facility will be busier with a second physician in Elk Point. "The first question is why with the same population but a second physician, we are seeing clients that had historically gone out of the community for their medical services? Review of the statistics so far do not show a significant increase in either admission rates or the number of people seen in ER. This, however, is only on a two month statistical evaluation, so is too early to tell."

"The increase in the oil patch, ladies and gentlemen, is not a flash in the pan," Buck told the LRHA. Recent meetings with oil company representatives as well as the service industry has indicated the activity is going to increase. Between the oil companies in our area, there will be in excess of 600 wells drilled this calendar year.

"During any time of the day there is in excess of 400 people in the "patch," contractors, rigs, service industry, etc. I invite all of you to come over and we will arrange a tour of the area so that you can see it firsthand."

Buck said the most significant issue for acute care staffing and utilization is that the health centre has been running at significant levels since the downsizing of staff, with no break in sight. "The staff continues to work at their maximum capacity and the emergency patient just makes a bad situation more intense. Some of these issues, Buck said, "could be resolved with renovations and minimal staffing changes, but it all takes money in a budget that apparently has no room for change."

Regarding long term care, Buck said that it has been brought to the committee's attention that people from Elk Point and area are being placed in other extended care facilities when there are five beds not being used in the Elk Point facility. "The move of these residents is causing undue hardship to the partner that is left at home, as well as the one moved away." One example is a person placed in a Bonnyville facility, whose partner is being transported by home care for visits. "How economical is that?" Buck asked. Another point is that there are patients in acute care beds (one has been in St. Paul since January) that should be in long term care. "We find these situations unacceptable and want to see the five beds activated in the same manner that has been done in Vilna," Buck said.

While Heritage Lodge is not the LRHA's responsibility, it is still affected by what happens in the health care facility, and vice versa, Buck said. The lodge is full to capacity, and has been for some time, and currently has a waiting list of 13. Forty one residents of the lodge are on home care. "These people, ladies and gentlemen, will be putting pressure on our long term care in the not too distant future. As a point of interest, there are 115 people out of the Elk Point office receiving home care. They too will become our responsibility in our facilities."

The Physician's Recruitment Committee also includes Town Councillor Ron Smith, County Reeve Ray Danyluk, County Councillor Gerald Krankowsky, Larry Demchuk, Dr. Drew Ramful, Dr. Jonathan Adams, Doug Mc Pherson and Barb Kaufman.

Lodge volunteers not to go unnoticed

By Tracy Kjenner
Heritage Lodge

Many would probably be surprised to learn of the many things that go on within the walls of Heritage Lodge. What with bingo, horse racing, card bingo, music, church services, dancing, decorating and dining to mention only a few, the residents certainly have the opportunity to keep busy.

Of course, these activities are most often brought to the lodge by volunteers. Without so many volunteers, the lodge could be a very different place with a less stimulating atmosphere. Too often volunteers go unnoticed at the lodge. Residents would like to make sure that their volunteers know just how much they are appreciated.

Please, for any of you who have volunteered at the lodge in any way over the past year, consider attending the Volunteer Appreciation Celebration at Heritage Lodge on Wednesday, April 23, 1997, 7:00 to 9:00 p.m. The residents have prepared a short program for your entertainment in an effort to thank you for all you have done throughout the year. Residents of the lodge look forward to hosting you that evening. Thank you, volunteers, for your participation, cooperation, and dedication throughout the year. See you on April 23.

Junior girls win provincial silver

By Doug Bassett
Sports reporter

You know the old joke, it must be spring. Why? Because the Maple Leafs are out. It's true, hockey season is over for another year, at least as far as the true blue fans are concerned. Oh yeah, did I forget about the those red and white guys, the Oilers' ugly sisters from the south. With the end of another hockey season and the ball diamonds all covered with that white stuff you probably thought that you had heard the last of me. Not so lucky! Wondering what to do with my time, my daughter saved the day, joining the junior high handball team. Not common knowledge, but while we were in Calgary with the Lightning, the junior high school girls travelled to Edmonton and won a provincial silver medal. Congratulations, girls!

Handball. Now there's a game that's rough. They call it Handball, but it should be called murderball. Almost as rough as hockey, it is a combination of basketball and rugby.

Played on a basketball court, with a smaller ball, and an almost-soccer-sized net, the object is to pass the ball or dribble it into the opposition's end and throw it into their net. The opposition has a big crease and as a defence they form a semi circle almost like muskoxen and try to block the shot any way possible.

This past weekend the senior girls, with some junior high players, played in a tournament in St. Albert. Things did get rough. In the first game, two key players were taken to the hospital, Kandice Bjornstad with a separated shoulder and Dennell

Anderson with a twisted knee. Winning their first two games, the girls made it to the semi-finals against Ardrossan. With a four point lead and only four minutes left, they were unable to hold on, losing in the final minute by a score of 13 to 12. Next weekend the senior girls will compete in the provincial finals. Good luck, girls.

And looking ahead..

In other sport news, don't forget to register for baseball this Wednesday night, April 16 at the Elementary School from 5:00 to 9:00 p.m. Soccer registration goes Monday and Tuesday.

ALEX KURASH MEMORIAL TROPHY WINNER Shawn Slywka was congratulated by his hockey coach Blaine Easthope. The award, honoring the memory of former hockey coach and supporter Alex Kurash, goes to Elk Point Minor Hockey's Most Improved Peewee player each year. Congratulations!

County councillors questioned by ratepayers at annual meeting

Rhonda Noyce
Staff Writer

The County councillors did not bet high enough for the number of ratepayers to turn out at their annual meeting last Tuesday.

About 40 ratepayers had their chance to fire out any questions that had been weighing on their minds about the County and its activities over the past year. Ratepayer Albert Boratynec was elected chair of the meeting and felt the councillors did a good job at answering questions.

"Most people are like me. They don't know what goes on there at the County. The annual meeting enlightens me a lot," said Boratynec.

There were all kinds of subjects raised from ground water mapping and weed control in the ditches to councillors' salaries and the County's efforts in communicating with the ratepayers on a monthly basis. One woman at the meeting said it was the first time she had received such a thorough explanation about councillors' salaries.

The meeting got underway at about 4 p.m., which was a topic of discussion on its own. Over the past number of years, the County has tried different times to schedule their annual meetings. They've tried seven at night and two in the afternoon, with low attendance results, but Boratynec said it's like planning a wedding: "You can't accommodate everyone at all times."

And although 40 people is quite a significant number for attendance at the annual meeting, the County wants to find ways to attract more ratepayers to the meetings in the future.

The annual meeting started off with the reeve's introduction of the councillors and a brief overview of their positions and responsibilities.

Auditor Caroline Graham from Deloitte and Touche out of Edmonton, gave the County a good grade for their financial activities in the past year and their 1997 interim budget. Secretary Bob Krawchuk then gave a reading of the County's financial statement.

Reeve Ray Danyluk finished up the County's presentation with a synopsis of the County's agenda over the past year including their changes in responsibilities, landfills, senior housing, environment issues, how assessment has changed, airports and the economy. Some of the new directions discussed involved the purchase of the new County shop, the new graders and the County's management plans.

Then the ratepayers had their chance to question the councillors.

Among the topics raised, ratepayers asked questions on what kind of action the County would take in supporting local landowners. With this latest dispute between the Starosielski family and the Department of Environment over the legalities of a berm, many ratepayers were concerned what direction the County would take.

The County made a motion at the meeting to support local landowners and take the direction of being more proactive in their support.

The proposed Boyne Lake landfill was also questioned and the County replied by saying they know it won't be a landfill, and they won't know about their future waste management plans until Environment starts its assessment of the existing landfills on April 21.

What's news at the library?

We're spring cleaning the collection

By Michele Ducek
Librarian

The change in season has prompted a fit of "Spring Cleaning" at the library. Lately I have been performing one of my least favorite tasks, deselecting or "weeding" the collection. This activity is the opposite of selecting for the collection, as instead of choosing what titles to add to our collection, I must decide what titles to remove. As a confirmed book lover I hate to remove any book from the shelves, but some books have reached the end of their library life and must make way for new items. Nearly all of the removed titles will be put out in the entrance for sale at the low, low prices of $.50 for hardcovers and $.25 for paperbacks. I also give deals for bulk purchases. Right now I'm working on children's fiction and there are some interesting items available.

I have also been cleaning out my files of new releases prior to receiving another batch of new books and came across a few holdovers from last month's delivery. In adult fiction:

One of the hottest titles last year was Primary Colors by Anonymous, a fictionalized account of presidential politics centering around a leader quite similar to Bill Clinton. The author was revealed to be a writer/editor from Newsweek magazine and Hollywood is making a movie based on the book. Now you can see what all the fuss was about.

The body of a gunned-down mafioso disappears from the city morgue and later turns up floating in the river minus its head, hands, feet and liver. This leads the medical examiner into the world of black market body parts and surgical procedures in Chromosome 6, the latest medical thriller from Robin Cook.

In Juvenile fiction we have:

A gala celebration at a military academy takes an ugly turn when a sergeant turns up murdered in Against the Rules from the Nancy Drew Files.

Not to mention juvenile non-fiction:

Bestselling mystery writers such as Jonathan Kellerman and Scott Turow team up with their kids, grandkids, or a young friend to produce Great Writers and Kids Write Mystery Stories.

Finally, in our children's book/cassette kits:

Rhinoceros Tap and 14 Other Seriously Silly Songs with lyrics and pictures by Sandra Boynton is a catchy collection of fun tunes sure to delight anyone. The kit comes with a cassette of the songs as well as a book with lyrics and music. I played this tape one afternoon and I loved the songs.

Also by Sandra Boynton is Grunt: Pigorian Chant from Snouto Domoinko de Silo, a spoof of the Gregorian chants that were so popular a while back. This kit includes a compact disc of chants in "pig" latin as well as a book detailing the history of the recording and complete text.

KEN GRAMBO

Evangelist in concert

Evangelist and gospel singer Ken Grambo will be in Elk Point on Friday, April 18 for a concert of hope and inspiration in the Elementary School gym, beginning at 7:30 p.m. There is no admission charge, but a free will offering will be taken.

Grambo is originally from northern Saskatchewan and now lives in the Camrose area, where he ministers to the Edberg / New Norway parish of the Evangelical Lutheran Church. He began singing in public at the age of five, and music and singing has always been his unique way of receiving and expressing some of the most meaningful things in life. He has written many gospel songs, and has recorded six albums in the past twenty years.
